SEATTLE, WA – Today marks the launch of A Grand Wedding (agrandwedding.com) where all vendors who advertise on the site have a quality, wedding service to offer priced at under a thousand dollars.

Unlike other wedding web sites that feature vendors that may or may not have a package or service priced under a grand, A Grand Wedding is a welcome site to engaged couples who want to have a beautiful wedding with enough money left over for a beautiful life.

The concept, inspired from their own wedding planning, was created by Seattle couple, Dave and Georgie Hockett. "When we were getting married, we wanted a cool, elegant wedding; but we didn't want to blow it all on one night," says Georgie. "We wanted a marriage, not just a party."

According to THE KNOT, over half of today's couples are cutting their wedding budgets in half. Georgie, who has worked as a professional wedding photographer for eight years, says that she's seen first hand how the economy has changed weddings. "Brides are having smaller weddings, weddings on Fridays. They are their own iPod DJ; they have friends take the pictures with digital cameras," says Georgie. "A Grand Wedding is about finding talented wedding professionals who offer specialty packages to brides who find them on A Grand Wedding."

A Grand Wedding (agrandwedding.com) also introduces BUY, BOROW or SHARE – a revolutionary way for brides to purchase, rent or split the bill on wedding items. AngelBride® is A Grand Wedding's answer to granting wedding wishes. Users can submit their story or nominate a friend to AngelBride with the hopes of having photography, catering, or other wedding elements donated by a local wedding industry professional.
